The increasing consumption of multimedia services and the demand of high quality services from customers pose challenges to service providers and mobile operators in terms of Quality of Service/Quality of Experience (QoS/QoE) control and management. The next IT landscape is expected to change radically in the next few years. New technologies are expected to fulfil a gap in the wireless industry. This call for QoS/QoE control and management solutions pertaining to programmable networks, cost reduction of IT systems, high speed and reliable transfer of heterogeneous data over software defined and virtualized infrastructures.

The main objective of this track is to explore the landscape of softwarization technologies to accelerate and exploit the huge next generation network transformation with embedded intelligent techniques leveraging Network Functions Virtualization (NFV) and Software Defined Networks (SDN). The aim is find better solutions that allow for proactive management of next generation softwarized network infrastructures.

Prospective authors are invited to submit original papers on topics including, but not limited to:

- Quality of Service/Experience (QoS/QoE) issues in next generation networks
- Novel approaches to next generation network management in SDN/NFV-based networks
- Network slicing and slice management
- Centralized vs Distributed control, management & orchestration
- Abstractions and virtualization of resources, services, and functions
- Policy-Based Networking (PBN) and Intent-Based Networking (IBN) in Software-Defined Infrastructures (SDI)
- Routing mechanisms, real-time operations and efficient network/service monitoring in SDN/NFV
- Lifecycle management of network software and APIs, protocols, and languages for programmable networks
- Networks policy-based management and Autonomic Management in next generation networks
- QoS/QoE and Service function chaining in softwarized infrastructures
